

» MULTIPOND Continues to Invest in the Future; New Sales and Service Facility to Optimize Customer and Market Support

The German company MULTIPOND, which specializes in the production and sales of multihead weighers, will also be represented at a number of exhibitions in Europe and the United States this year. The company is a leading innovator and manufacturer of specialized weighing equipment. In order to continue providing optimum service to its customers, the company is investing 3 million euros at its production facility in Germany as well as an additional 1.5 million US dollars at its sales and service facility in Green Bay-WI / USA.

The production facility, at the German headquarters near Munich, will be expanded and a new technical center with climate chamber built. In August 2012, the American subsidiary will move into its newly constructed sales and service building with approx. 2,400 m² of usable space.

Wilhelm Krämer / Director of Sales and Marketing comments:

We view our future growth and market opportunities as very positive overall. The trend in the US market in particular looks extremely positive for the future. After almost 15 years of physical presence, market cultivation and further development, our team is in top condition. More and more A-List Companies in the food sector rely on the know-how and experience of MULTIPOND. Investment at our US site is a logical consequence of our success and a commitment to our customers, partners and valued personnel.

We will continue to concentrate on the production of "custom-engineered" multihead weighers in the future – there will never be an "off the rack" weigher from us. We still consider production of upstream and downstream modules such as our vibrating chutes and product transfer systems as a core competence that will be developed further in the future.

Thanks to excellent relationships and partnerships with the most important OEMs in the field of packaging technology, we can always develop and manufacture complete lines. This allows us to satisfy our customers' request to have only one contact and coordinator for the successful fulfillment of projects.

MULTIPOND is the sales and service division of the German based manufacturing company ATOMA which has been established since 1946. The first automatic weighing system for the packaging industry was launched in 1963. It is positioned as the market leading innovator in the design and manufacture of customized multihead weighing systems for the packaging industry. Headquarters and manufacturing facilities are in Waldkraiburg, Germany, about 65km east of Munich. Beside the global network of sales and service representatives, there are four wholly owned sales and service subsidiaries in the UK, the Netherlands, France and the US.
